ABOUT PHILADELPHIA COUNTRY CLUB

Philadelphia Country Club is one of the oldest country clubs in the country. In 1890 John C. Bullitt, an enthusiastic sportsman, persuaded a small group of socially prominent Philadelphians to join him in organizing a country club for riding and driving. They purchased a sixty acre property in Bala adjoining Fairmount Park and constructed a polo field. A nine-hole golf course was completed in 1892.

Due to the rise in the popularity of golf, the Club purchased land for an 18 hole golf course in Gladwyne in 1926. The club operated in two locations until 1957 when the clubhouse on Spring Mill Road was completed.

The purpose of this club is to operate as a private social club for the social enjoyment and recreational benefit of its members.

Today, the Club contains 1,060 members and their families ranging in age from 25 to 96. Over half the members reside in the surrounding neighborhoods of Gladwyne, Bryn Mawr, Villanova and Wayne.

Club activities include bowling, bridge, golf, platform tennis, shooting, squash, swimming, a fitness center and tennis.

The Clubhouse accommodates the dining areas, locker rooms, Golf Pro Shop, Fitness Center and administrative offices.

In addition to the Clubhouse, the facilities consist of a 27 hole golf course, nine tennis courts, three international size squash courts, two platform tennis courts, an Olympic size swimming pool, baby pool, a shooting lodge and four bowling alleys.
